ST. MARY'S CHURCH, Hamilton Village, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

At the time of the Survey, St. Mary's congregation was planning major revisions in the church property. The parish house was to be remodeled, and the church building was also to be extensively remodeled. Structurally, the buildings are all in sound condition, including the brick rectory which is adjacent to the other property of the congregation. It is reported that the rectory needs fairly extensive roofing work. The alterations of the parish hall and the church building are planned to make it a more serviceable unit, in the light of the ministry to the college community and to the non-academic community in surrounding areas.

THE CHURCH NEIGHBORHOOD

St. Mary's Church is surrounded by the University of Pennsylvania Campus, which is an increasingly complex institution having various related institutions in the immediate vicinity. In addition to University buildings and living quarters for University personnel, the area also includes row housing which is unrelated to the University. A considerable amount of new building is planned so that the general neighborhood is somewhat in a state of flux.

From 1950 to 1960 the population trend has been downward, a trend which may be leveling off at present.

The City of Philadelphia has been divided into numerous census tracts and for the purposes of the Survey, the tract in which St. Mary's buildings are located, 27-B, and the five adjacent tracts have been designated as the parish area for the church. The following tables give information on population characteristics and changes as of 1960. In spite of the developments which have occurred since 1960, the tables may be of value, if only in measuring the degree of change. The first table shows the pattern of decreasing population and the atypical age distribution of the residents. Many of the tracts show strongly the influence of the University dormitories, having very few youngsters and also few older adults. Census Tracts 27-B and C show that configuration most clearly.

CENSUS TRACT OR ZONE	POPULATION		%	14 & UNDER	65 & OVER	MED. AGE

27-E	9,094	3,319	-18.9	5.5	9.4	20.3	30.0

The next table gives information on the education of adults, 25 years or more as of 1960. The median education refers to the number of formal years of school completed by the adults. There is a substantial range of median school years completed, but the general level is a moderate one.

The following table gives information on the non-white population. In most areas the proportion of non-white people decreased from 1950 to 1960, although Census Tract 27-C showed a sharp increase. The area as a whole, shows quite a variation in the proportion of the non-white population to the total.

	NON-WHITE

27-E	750	877	16.9	26.4
		12,234		39.1

The following table contains data derived from a summary of the membership map submitted by churches of the diocese. As the table is studied, it should be noted that the Episcopal Church throughout Philadelphia reaches people equal in number to 2.0% of the 1960 population. It should also be noted that St. Mary's Church buildings are in Census Tract 27-B.

CENSUS TRACT OR ZONE	TOTAL POP.	TOTAL EPIS.	% OF POP. EPIS.	TOTAL PARISH MEMB.	% EPIS. MEMB.	% PARISH MEMB.

27-E	3,319	14	0.4	3	21.4	0.9
	31,322	727	2.3	202	27.8	61.9

Generally speaking, the Episcopal Church is not well represented, the proportion being only a little above the average. St. Mary's Church reports a small proportion of the total Episcopalians, finding about 62% of its own membership within its own vicinity.

In addition to filling out the Church Self-Study Form, the congregation of St. Mary's Church provided welcome additional information on proposals for the future of the congregation, and upon ways in which the congregation is working which do not fit the stereotype. The attention of the congregation is drawn to that Church Self-Study Form and its addenda, prepared by the Local Survey Committee and reproduced in the following pages. That information provides much of the basic data which the General Division of Research and Field Study has about St. Mary's Church, information which is reflected in the Discussion and Recommendations section of this report. If the congregation has not already done so, it is urged to study the material carefully as part of the long-range planning which is being carried out.

REPORTED MEMBERSHIP FROM MAPS

PH-69

RFS/sk

6

St. Mary's Church submitted a map on which were shown the places of residence of 327 persons. As might be expected, West Philadelphia contains the largest grouping of members, the area between Baltimore Avenue and Market Street having the highest concentration of all. A number of individual members come from widely separated parts of the city, as well. There does not seem to be any strong pattern to the scattering.

St. Mary's Church may intend to minister to the University community and to the surrounding areas, but its congregation cannot really be said to provide a very firm base for such a ministry.

REPORTED MEMBERSHIP AND FINANCIAL DATA FROM JOURNALS

PH-69

RFS/sk

From 1940 through 1961, the reported membership figures for St. Mary's Church showed a general rise. 1962 and 1963 figures show a considerable drop, perhaps due to a change in the method of membership counting.

From 1961 through 1963 the number of baptisms averaged 4.7% of the communicant strength while the confirmations averaged 3.8%. In 1962 and 1963, however, the ratios were much higher, due to the drastic drop in the number of reported communicants. In general, it can be said that the higher the ratios of baptisms and of confirmations are to the communicant strength, the more stable is the future of the congregation. That rule-of-thumb may not apply strictly to St. Mary's Church, since it has a somewhat specialized ministry. But any variation from the present high ratios should be carefully scrutinized.

The total reported expenditures for St. Mary's Church have increased substantially over the years. From 1961 through 1963 the average annual expenditure per communicant was $137.04 which is itself a commendable figure, especially when compared with the diocesan average of $73.71 and the national average of approximately $96.00. With the decrease in the reported communicant strength the average expenditures per communicant have risen greatly, being well over $200.00 both in 1962 and 1963.

During that same time, 1961 to 1963, the congregation of St. Mary's Church set aside only 7.8% of its total reported expenditures for extra-parochial purposes. That figure should be compared with the diocesan ratio of 14.9%, the Philadelphia ratio of 12.2%, and the West Philadelphia ratio of 15.1%.

DATA ON THE CONGREGATION

PH-69

9

The Episcopal Census for St. Mary's Church includes information on only 200 respondents, 14 of whom are not members of the Episcopal Church. That proportion is not large enough for an analysis to be statistically valid so no tables or commentary have been prepared. The congregation is urged to take a more complete census of itself for use in its own self-evaluation. If desired, the General Division of Research and Field Study will analyze an additional census, as time is available.

DISCUSSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, Hamilton Village, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

RFS:st

One of the major purposes of the Diocesan Survey is to stimulate individual congregations to study themselves and their communities with a view toward long-range planning. St. Mary's Church has anticipated that the purpose of the Survey and the major findings of the analysis by the General Division of Research and Field Study are that of commendation and encouragement. It is hoped that the congregation will make the long-range planning committee a permanent concept, even if not a permanent institution. The combination of the long view and flexibility is an exciting one and should produce interesting and effective results.

The Self-Study Form gives a good deal of information on proposed building changes, partly to accommodate the day nursery and partly for the improvement of the rest of the plant. No information is available in the Self-Study Form concerning the finances of the congregation and the General Division of Research and Field Study can only hope that the necessary money will be forthcoming. The size of the congregation would seem to impose strict limitations on any remodelling, but there may well be resources which are not readily apparent.

It has been observed that Episcopalians are reluctant to be evangelists because of the prevalent limited knowledge of the Church among its members. One of the major responsibilities of St. Mary's Church is that of spreading the Good News throughout the university community and throughout the surrounding residential areas. It is somewhat surprising to find only a small group of people engaged in formal studying about the teachings of Christianity. It may be that adult education is emphasized more than is readily apparent. In any event it certainly is a necessary prerequisite for effective witnessing. Emphasis on intellectual understanding does not, of course, eliminate the basic requirement for evangelism and fervor, qualities which must be caught and have seldom, if ever, been taught in formal classes.

The entire life of a congregation is involved in the evolution of a desire on the part of persons to be evangelists. Education is closely related, however, and can at least serve to channel enthusiasm.

RFS:st

As the congregation works through individual circumstances, it may wish to apply the concept of temporary commissions to accomplish particular tasks, as opposed to permanent committees or organizations which frequently come to have more of bureaucracy than of function for their existence. The people with the desired aptitudes for a particular task might be hard at work for two or three months, and then might disband, leaving no fossil committee behind.

St. Mary's Church may wish to get in touch with St. Andrew's Church, State College, in the Diocese of Harrisburg. It is a congregation which is also working in a university community and which has been exploring various avenues of church work. The circumstances of St. Andrew's and St. Mary's are dissimilar in many respects, but some cross-fertilization may be possible.
